RADIOVISION, well known suppliers of in-car sound systems and car security systems, opened a new branch in Isipingo Rail at the beginning of July.

If you are the sort of person who really cares about having a good sound system and demands an equally good security system to protect your car and its contents, then Radiovision Isipingo is the place for you.

Radiovision Isipingo was opened by owner Mr Dave Naidu to cater for the increasing number of clients, from the South Coast, who previously had to travel to Radiovision's branch in central Durban.

The new branch is conveniently situated in shop number 10 at the S Dass Centre, 20 Old Main Road, Isipingo Rail.

There is ample parking and, in the store, there is a relaxed environment in which you can browse through their exceptional range of car sound systems, portable sound systems and car burglar alarms.

An extensive demonstration board allows you to listen to extensive combinations of speaker and radio/tape systems so that you can choose the ideal sound for you. Radiovision will install a new sound system in your car for you, quickly, efficiently and at reasonable cost. They will also install your car security system for you.

A full repair service for all types of radios, televisions and video equipment is offered by Radiovision's specially trained and experienced staff.

At Radiovision, the emphasis is on a high standard of service and, with this in mind, the store stocks only those items that have the best guarantee and back-up service so that, should a fault develop in your sound or security system, it can be rectified quickly.

The products carried by Radiovision include such famous brand-names as Alpine, Pioneer, Audiodek, Shurlock, National, Sanyo, Sankei, Philips and Sharp. These products are featured prominently in the store.

Radiovision's manager in Isipingo, Mr Trevor Paul, with his extensive experience in the sound business and his love of music, will be very happy to discuss with you any of their sound or security systems.
